Sharon Huffman, MS, LCPC is an experienced Child and Family Therapist, having spent many years working in Head Start programs, in public mental health agencies and in private practice. As a former Program Director at Abilities Network, she also has extensive experience working with children who have special needs to help them be successfully included in child care and school programs. Her experiences include teaching social skills groups, assisting families with home based routines, coaching families on parenting practices, and supporting families in the IFSP/IEP process. Sharon has a Master's in Counseling Psychology from Loyola College in Maryland and is a licensed clinical professional counselor.

Sharon has always been a “kid” person and, in addition to her professional experience, provided home day care when her children were younger, and is the mother of five children, one with special needs. This combination of professional and personal experiences allows Sharon to see things from many perspectives and to understand the challenges families can face.
